A Conversation with Ellen Burstyn, Bryce Dallas Howard,
Jodie Markell, Elaine Stritch, and Eli Wallach

Moderated by Charles Isherwood

Wednesday, December 9, 2009, at 7:00 p.m.

An all-star panel of actors and directors will talk about the enduring legacy of Tennessee Williams, who was among the most important and influential playwrights of the 20th century. The upcoming movie The Loss of a Teardrop Diamond, the directorial debut of actress Jodie Markell, is based on a rediscovered screenplay by Williams. Markell and two of the film's stars, Ellen Burstyn and Bryce Dallas Howard, will be on the panel, along with the legendary Elaine Stritch, who recently presented an evening "The Lighter Side of Tennessee Williams," and the equally legendary Eli Wallach, who made his memorable screen debut in Elia Kazan's Baby Doll. Charles Isherwood, theater critic for The New York Times, will moderate the program. The evening will include scenes from films including A Streetcar Named Desire, Baby Doll, and The Fugitive Kind, and an exclusive look at scenes from The Loss of a Teardrop Diamond.

Tickets: $25, $15 for Museum members and students with valid ID. Free for Sponsor-level members and above. Order tickets online at movingimage.us or call 718.784.4520.
